Acknowledgements

This report is supported by the McKnight Foundation. AYPF acknowledges several people for assisting in the creation of this publication. This report was written by Donna Walker James and Glenda Partee. Significant assistance was provided by Sonia Jurich, previously a consultant to AYPF and now a Research Associate at RMC, Inc. and a consultant to the Inter-American Development Bank. Among those kind enough to review portions of this report were: Martin Blank, Director for School, Family Connections and staff director for the Coalition for Community Schools, Institute for Educational Leadership; Joy Dryfoos, author; Anne T. Henderson, Senior Consultant, Institute for Education and Social Policy, New York University; and Richard Mendel, journalist. Oliver Moles, Institute of Education Sciences, U.S. Department of Education shared information on federal strategies to improve family involvement. Colleagues at the American Youth Policy Forum—Betsy Brand, Samuel Halperin, Ming Trammel, Nancy Martin and Tracy Schmidt—also reviewed, edited and provided helpful advice on the report. Diana McLaughlin assisted in editing this report. Rafael Chargel designed the cover and formatted the report. The views reflected in this publication are those of AYPF alone.
